(SLL-CDRR) - Executive Master in Disaster Risk & Crisis Management (EMDRCM)

EMDRCM

Executive Master in Disaster Risk and Crisis Management

BECOME A RESILIENCE LEADER

The EMDRCM program is the first of its kind in the world to offer a leadership and management program to disaster and crisis professionals. This 18-month degree program is intensive, immersive, and practitioner-oriented. It allows practitioners and professionals to balance their careers and the pursuit of higher learning.

The program equips students with essential skills for disaster and crisis management in Asia. With a strong focus on practical applications, the curriculum teaches coordinated methods and integrated tools. Students gain leadership skills, learn to assess organizational performance, and make evidence-based decisions. This approach ensures graduates are well-prepared to handle real-world challenges in disaster management.

The program design aligns with the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, the Sustainable Development Goals 2015-2030, Agenda for Humanity, and the 2015 UN Climate Change Conference Agreement.

CONCENTRATION AREAS

ORGANIZATIONAL RESILIENCE

Explore how organizations manage disasters and crises with versatile models. Learn about enterprise risk management and business continuity principles for effective preparation and response.

DISASTER RESILIENCE AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Acknowledge the human aspect of disasters by understanding vulnerability and risk from social, economic, political, and technocratic angles, crucial for informed policy-making.

CRISIS AND HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

Examines diverse ideologies, philosophies, politics, and challenges in humanitarian work through recent crisis cases, offering valuable insights and applications into the field.
